ILADEF Lyme Training

The ILADEF training program has been created to provide qualified medical professionals with the tools to diagnose and treat chronic Lyme and other tick-borne disease patients.

STEPS BEFORE TRAINING

To participate in this unique program, the medical professional must complete the ILADS Lyme Fundamentals course which is offered prior to the ILADS Annual Scientific Conference. Afterwards, the medical professional must pass a short quiz to determine understanding of basic knowledge.

Following successful completion of the post course quiz, the candidate must complete preceptor training paperwork which is submitted to our national office. The program involves a one to two week preceptorship, or shadowing of one of our designated training physicians.

STEPS AFTER TRAINING

ILADEF offers grants to help underwrite the participant's expenses while taking part in the preceptorship. For more information, check with ILADEF at contact@ilads.org. To receive a grant, the trainee must complete the training and then write a summary of his/her experience, including the dates trained, with whom, and the anticipated impact on his/her practice. The summary should be sent to contact@ilads.org. The trainee will then receive reimbursement for approximately $1500 to help with expenses.

Other medical professionals who otherwise would not qualify for training may take part in this program if approved by ILADEF and by paying $1500. Training is at the discretion of the individual training physician.

CONCLUSION

After completion, newly-trained physicians may advertise that they have completed the ILADEF preceptorship. However, they may not advertise an elevated expertise as there is no test upon completion of the program.
